U.S. NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

2025 Team Selection Criteria

I. Purpose

The U.S. National Development Program (“USNDP” or “Program”) is a program developed by the United States Golf Association (“USGA”), the national governing body of golf, to provide resources and opportunities to promising American golfers, including pathways for development and success to reach their full playing potential. One focus of the USNDP is to identify talented junior, amateur and young professional athletes who may compete on behalf of the United States as members of our National Development Teams.

The USNDP Team Selection Criteria (“Selection Criteria”) outlines the criteria used by the USGA to identify athletes for selection to its National Development Teams. Through this Selection Criteria, the USGA aims to establish and provide clear, transparent, and consistent eligibility criteria and selection processes, and outline the processes and timing for naming athletes to the National Development Teams.

This Selection Criteria will be reviewed and updated annually. The current Selection Criteria will be available on www.usga.org/usndp.

II. National Development Teams

Over time, the USNDP endeavors to build three tiers of National Development Teams – Junior, Amateur, and Young Professional. However, only the National Junior and National Amateur Development Teams will be selected for the 2025 term.

Athletes selected to a National Development Team are provided the opportunity to participate for a one (1) year period. The term for the 2025 National Junior Development Team and National Amateur Development Team (“Elite Amateur Program”) will be January 15, 2025, through December 31, 2025. However, the USGA may adjust an athlete’s term at any time, in its sole discretion, including early removal from a National Development Team for violation of Program policies. For any subsequent years, current members of a National Development Team will be re-evaluated for selection to a team for additional one (1) year periods. There is no guarantee that an athlete will be selected for a team in subsequent years.

The 2025 National Junior Development Team shall consist of a girls’ team and boys’ team, each consisting of at least eight (8) team members but may include additional team members. The 2025 National Amateur Development Team (“Elite Amateur Program”) shall consist of a women’s team and a men’s team, each consisting of at least three (3) team members but may include additional team members. The number of athletes selected for each team shall be determined by USGA, in its discretion, and may be adjusted throughout the year.

III. Team Selection Committee

Athletes for National Development Teams will be evaluated and selected by the Team Selection Committee, which will consist of USGA staff members who are part of the USNDP, including, but not limited to, the Managing Director Player Relations and Development,
